KXVII
IT WAS quite impossible for her to make them believe her. They were kind to her and they listened to her with a tolerance that was infuriating but which she was unable to combat.

They were beginning to exchange commiserating glances over her head, glances that said only too plainly that she was ill, that the shock of Tommy's death had been too much for her, that she had cracked under the strain. When Sam Blanding got to his feet and said, rather uncomfortably, that he guessed he'd better be running home, she knew forlornly that she had failed.

"I won't say a word about this," the sheriff said unhappily, looking at neither her nor Rush directly. "No use to get the town on its ear. Tell you what, Mrs. Blanding, if you give me a ring and I'll come out and talk to you again."

He gave her his full direct gaze and as she looked into the intelligent eyes she felt a wild hope stir inside her breast. Was he trying to tell her something? Trying to reassure her but in such a way that the others would not understand? She felt pulses quicken all over her body.

Rush laughed then, a bit too heartily. "After Ann's had a good rest she'll realize how mistaken she's been." He put his arm about her shoulders; it was all she could do not to draw away. "I'm not saying, you understand, that there isn't some truth in what she says. His voice was smooth as velvet. "It's her interpretation I don't agree with."

"Of course," Enos said, also smoothly, "and under strain facts have a way of looking different. Believe me, I know."

"You know..." Rush said and then he hesitated, glanced down at Ann's drawn face, then looked at Sam Blanding again. "I don't know what you'd think of this Sam, but we've got a note over on the lake. I was thinking it might not be a bad idea to take Ann up there for a few days until she's entirely rested." His deference to the sheriff was both flattering and disarming.

And any wild hope Ann may have had in Sam Blanding died an abrupt death when the sheriff said, "Why, I can't see where it would hurt any." And then he said gently, "Provided, of course, you take good care of the little lady. Wouldn't want any acidents to happen to her." His voice underlined the word accident, oh, very lightly, and Ann realized the sheriff had put no credence in her story. None at all.

Sheriff Blanding looked acutely uncomfortable for a minute after his remark and so he added, jocularly, "Not that I think—" But that was no good either, so he began again, his face red—"They say these things have a way of coming in threes, you know."

Help came then from an unexpected source.

Gay said, her voice low and sweet, "I don't mean to sound silly but wouldn't it be easy to get in touch with this man in Cheyenne?"

Everyone looked at her in such astonishment that the bright color leaped to her face and she said defensively, "Well, wouldn't it sort of clear the air? If you put yourself in Ann's place it's easy to see why she's upset; I would be, I know, if the same things had happened to me. It seems to me—" She paused, looked frightfully embarrassed—"well, almost to much of a coincidence."

"Gay!" Rush said.

THAT one word contained so many things that Ann, for a moment, was appalled. She struggled for sanity. Not Rush and Gay! Dear God, surely not! If there'd been any feeling between them, any love for each other, she'd have sensed it. She knew she would have. Yet Rush's single speaking of Gay's name and said volumes. "It would be so easy to check," Gay said doggedly and she wouldn't look at Rush. "A long distance telephone call—"

"But, my dear, what would it accomplish?" Enos asked softly.

Sam Blanding turned his pipe back and forth in his hands. "I guess it probably won't hurt none to call him if it'll make Mrs. Bancroft feel any better."

"Of course," Enos said rapidly. "Of course." He turned to Ann. "Do you want to talk to him yourself, Ann? Or do you trust Sheriff Blanding?"

"I—" Her mouth was parched, her voice was harsh. "I don't know."

"Well, look," Rush said and there was an edge to his voice that she recognized as a danger signal; Rush's temper was growing short. "You must know! I mean—doggonit Ann, if you don't know what you want? Or don't you know what you want?" He watched her and his probing eyes made her shiver. Rush's eyes made her shiver!

"The thing is, there's no point in getting everyone all up in the air over nothing. Go ahead and call Cheyenne if you want to but it seems to me—"

And Enos cut in so easily it was almost as though he had visibly smoothed ruffled feathers. Enos said, "But we want to ease Ann's mind, Rush. She'll rest better and recover more quickly if—"

From a far distance she heard herself distinctly. "There's nothing the matter with my mind," and then the blackness and the terror descended upon her, came down like a dark angry cloud out of the strong June sunshine, and over-whelmed her. It was a little like drowning and, although she struggled, she knew full well she was quite lost. I accomplished nothing at all, she thought. I gave away all my knowledge and I didn't gain a thing. And so it will go on...

and on... and on... (To Be Continued)

TRY TO INCLUDE SPAIN, GERMANY IN EUROPE UNION

PARIS, March 16—Proposals to include Western Germany and Spain in the European Recovery program were expected today by the 16 nations conferring on the Marshall plan.

Addition of the two countries would spread the program over all Western Europe.

A British foreign office spokesman said Portugal was one of the nations sponsoring Spanish membership. He did not say how Great Britain felt, although the foreign office previously has opposed Spanish participation while Spain remained under the Franco government.

The Spanish government-in-exile here made known its intention to protest.

German representatives will attend the conference as economic experts, along with representatives of the U. S. and British military governments.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag every time you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell. Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease. To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients. Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better sleep better, feel better, work better play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh all out hollow places. # INS Writer Sees Findlay The Best In Class A

Field Flecked With Teams In Cinderella Roles, But Findlay Looks Best Now

BY JOHN BARRINGTON
INS Sports Writer

Veteran observers who have seen many a high school basketball team flower and fade were casting their jaundiced eyes over the "field" today.

While 32 surviving Class A and Class B teams made preparations for this weekend's regionals, the cynics sought a crop of likely underdogs to back against the outstanding favorites.

In the latter category are undefeated Findlay in Class A and probably the winner of Thursday night's Glenford-Bremen clash in Class B. At least, those three teams have the best tourney and season records.

The state championship race is not always to the swift, however. Last year, for instance, Middletown reached Columbus with seven defeats on its record. This year, the Middies were undefeated until last Saturday, but they won't even get to Columbus to defend their state championship.

Miamisburg took care of that by upsetting the Middies in a district final. By so doing, the mediocre Miamisburg team stamped itself as one of the outstanding dark-horses of the Class A tourney, although its season's record is 13 wins and six losses.

There are others, however. Steubenville didn't get its record up to the 500 mark until it entered tourney play. But the Big Red eliminated both East Liverpool, and heavily favored Martins Ferry.

Or take Mansfield Madison. On the record — which is 20 victories and two defeats — Madison looks like one of the favored brethren. However, it is one of the smallest of Class A schools, barely above the 150-boy limit, and its district victories over Sandusky, Mansfield Senior High and Bellevue all were unexpected.

Other Class A surprises are Stow, which has a 13-9 record and scored three consecutive district upsets at Akron, and Bowling Green, which recovered from a mediocre season, to romp through the Defiance district eliminations. The Bobcats now have a 12-8 tally sheet for the year.

Opening round games may tell the tale for all those underdogs. Mansfield Madison meets Findlay at Toledo. In the same tourney, Bowling Green crosses paths with the Toledo City and district king, Central Catholic (21-4).

Miamisburg is booked against rugged Cincinnati Walnut Hills, Queen city champion with 18 triumphs and six setbacks. At New Concord, Steubenville opens with Coshocton (17-5).

Yes, it's a great opportunity for one of the cinderellas to put the favorites in the shade with a sudden, sustained "hot" streak. But what will you bet that Findlay's Trojans are in there slugging at the final gun?

Fans Wondering If Barons Can Lose!

By INS

Cleveland hockey followers forgot about the championships today and instead tried to guess how long their Barons could keep their 24-game unbeaten streak going.

That the Barons will take the American playoffs is a foregone conclusion to most Cleveland fans, and the big question is: "How long can the Barons keep their fabulous winning streak going?"

The Barons have only three more regular games before the playoffs start next week. The best they could do this season would be to extend the undefeated record to 35 straight.

The Barons meet St. Louis tomorrow and then play a home and home series with Indianapolis with the winner tangling in another four-of-seven series for the title.

Other games tomorrow night include Hershey at Philadelphia and New Haven at Springfield.

INDIANS TACKLE OAKLAND OAKS IN TODAY'S BATTLE

Overcoming Jinx by Coast Outfits; Gettle and Breaden Victors

(By Associated Press)
STOCKTON, Calif., March 16—Their Pacific coast league jinx apparently broken, Cleveland's Indians tackle the Oakland Oaks again today.

Gene Bearden and Al Gettel collaborated last night to hold the Oaks to five hits as the tribe took a 3 to 0 victory in Oakland, Los Angeles and San Francisco previously had downed the Tribe.

Bearden's work against his 1947 teammates was particularly impressive. Hurling the first five innings, he allowed only one hit while striking out seven and walking one. Only two Oaks reached first and both were stranded there.

Gettel allowed one hit during each of the four frames he pitched. Cleveland slugged three Oak hurlers for 12 blows.

The heavy artillery in the tribe attack was handled by Manager Lou Boudreau, who drove out two homers, and Second Baseman Joe Gordon, with three singles.

Boudreau's circuit smash in the first frame started the big leaguers on their way to victory and they added two more runs in the second inning when Gordon and Al Rosen singled. A wild throw, a long fly by Hank Ruszowski and an infield out by Bearden enabled them to complete their trip around the sacks.

Three more men crossed the plate in the third inning on Boudreau's homer, a single by Hank Edwards, two bases on balls and two infield errors.

The Tribe added another in the seventh on a double by Alie Clark and a single by Gordon. A pass, two singles and an error sent two more runners home in the eighth.

A feature of the match was the fielding of Al Rose, rookie third baseman, who came to the Indians from Oklahoma City. He handled seven chances and twice brought the crowd to its feet with hair-raising plays.

UNITED TOOL WINS PLAYOFF CONTEST

A sizzling United Tool team made a shambles of the first playoff game for the city basketball title Monday night, soundly thrashing the Mullins Manufacturers 61-51 before a full house at the Memorial building.

United hit the hoop from all angles during the first three periods, never giving Mullins even a momentary edge. The losers had beaten the Toolers two straight games to gain the playoffs.

Holding a 52-32 lead at the end of the third period, the winners coasted most of the last quarter, picking up the tempo only when Mullins closed the lead to nine points.

Walt Brian was sensational for United, caging nine baskets and a pair of free throws for 20 points. He was followed by Dick Miner's 14 and John Fridon's 10 points.

Kenny Shears had one of his better nights, hitting for 12 points from the floor. Frank Lannery caged nine points, including seven charity tosses.

The two squads play their fourth consecutive tilt at 8 tonight on the Memorial building hardwoods. A victory for United will bring them the championships.

CRISLER QUILTS COACHING, NOW ATHLETIC HEAD

Named Director of Michigan After Year of Greatest Triumph

BY JOHN F. MAYHEW
ANN ARBOR, MICH., March 16—H. O. (Fritz) Crisler, who guided Michigan to the apex of football glory, today ended his coaching career.

Even as he announced his retirement from the football bench, the handsome, greying, 49-year-old mentor named as his immediate successor Kenny G. Oosterbaan, his backfield assistant.

Crisler will remain the university's athletic director.

He started the sports world with his announcement shortly before midnight, attributing his decision to "the exacting demands" of his position as head of the department of physical education, athletic director and head football coach.

The Michigan coach discounted the suddenness of the announcement by saying he had been considering the move "for some time."

His withdrawal as head coach and the appointment of Oosterbaan was discussed and approved, he said, by the Michigan athletic board in control just prior to his announcement.

The shrewd and canny chief stepped down in the year of his greatest triumph.

His 1947 squad rolled over nine opponents like no Michigan club had been able to do since the point-a-minute combine of the early 1900's.

After an undefeated season, his third in 17 years of major collegiate coaching, Crisler took his powerhouse out west and inflicted one of the most stunning defeats in Rose Bowl history on a hapless university of Southern California squad.

The 49 to 0 score duplicated Michigan's 1902 venture against Stanford that originated the famous bowl series.

EXPECT NEW

The military assistance project into a separate section of its Marshall plan bill.

That $5,300,000,000 measure already passed by the senate also appeared certain to bring a presidential plea for swift house action.

Anticipating such a request, the foreign affairs committee called another night session in the hope of finishing its bill by tomorrow.

Acting Chairman Vorys (R-Ohio) told newsmen after a three-hour meeting last night he is "hopeful" the committee will complete its work by the time the President is ready to speak.

The house Republican steering committee, which shapes party policy, called a meeting this afternoon to work out a tentative schedule for actual house consideration. Many members are hopeful the house can pass an aid bill before Easter.

In addition to foreign assistance measures, Truman, also is widely expected to press again for congressional action on universal military training.

In fact the senate armed services committee postponed from today until Wednesday afternoon—after the President's talk—the start of its UMT hearings.

However, few congress members thought Truman would ask now for the drastic step of reviving the wartime draft. Such action was suggested last week by James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State and still a good friend of the President.

Did you know that if one of your wheels is as little as one-eighth inch out of line, your tire is dragged sideways approximately 85 feet in every mile?
It is easy to see from this fact how much unnecessary wear your tires receive if your wheels are out of line.
